Market today: The market on slippery slope

(Phuong Pham – phuong.pth@vdsc.com.vn)

The market stuck on its extreme weakness in the week's first session. Heavy selling pressure from many groups of industries, along with the loss of demand, put the index on a slippery slope during the session. VN-Index continuously plummeted to the lowest price on April 26, 2022, at around 1,260 points. VN-Index dropped 59.64 points (-4.49%) and closed at 1,269.62 points. The "hit the floor" stocks also reached a new record, with 356 shares decreasing to the full range today. The liquidity rose quite well compared to the previous session with 627.1 million shares matched on HOSE.

The VN30 group also experienced a deep plunge similar to the VN-Index. Even this index sometimes penetrated the lowest price set on April 26, 2022. VN30-Index lost 4.31% points and closed at 1,314.04 points. This is also the newly established bottom level. Red covered the index with all 30 stocks in the group closing down, of which 13 stocks hit the floor price like TCB, PLX, MWG, VPB, STB...

The market's downward pressure affected most industries and caused many groups to start their journey to find new bottoms. The most significant drop today was Finance, Mining, Construction, Securities...

The only bright spot about today's transaction was that foreign investors saw a relatively large net buying on HOSE, with VND 574.9 billion. They bought the most were VHM (+94.1 billion), HPG (+63.8 billion), GMD (+60.6 billion), VRE (+50.6 billion), DGC (+49.5 billion)... On the net selling side, the highlight was NVL (-38.6 billion), VCB (-20.1 billion), GEX (-17 billion), SBT (-11 billion), STB (-10.8 billion)…

"The market on slippery slope"

The market remained to plummet to the bottom on April 26, 2022, with overwhelming and widespread selling pressure. Although VN-Index has not yet established a new bottom, many sectors in the market have broken the bottom and started the journey to find a new bottom. Besides, the bottom fishing demand also disappeared, shown by the lack of bounce in price and volume when the index dropped to lower support areas. With the current unbalanced state, VN-Index will likely be under pressure and have to retreat to lower price ranges in the coming sessions. It is expected that the VN-Index will be able to stop falling near the support of 1,230 points. Therefore, Investors should limit new purchases to keep their portfolios in a safe state and wait for signals of ample cash flow to return to the market. Investors with a higher risk appetite may consider buying low-priced stocks with reasonable valuations but should still avoid highly speculative stocks.

Technical Analyst Recommendations

The stock market continued to decline and retreated to the lowest price range in the session of April 26. With today's sharp drop, it is expected that selling will continue to put pressure on VN-Index in early tomorrow morning. However, as stocks reach more attractive price levels, the bottom fishing activities are likely to be triggered and might help the market recover at the end of the day. Therefore, investors can take advantage of low prices to accumlated stocks with good valuation and stocks that attract better cash flow.
