“Buying activities of local and foreign investors in recent three sessions”

6 PM CALL

Market today: Buying activities of local and foreign investors in recent three sessions

(Tuan Huynh - Ext: 1318)

What have foreigners net purchased in recent three sessions? They have net bought over VND344 billion in HSX for recent three sessions. They kept net buying positions at over a half of liquid stocks (5-day average volume above 10,000 shares per session). Over 80 percent out of these stocks (stocks that saw net-buying of foreigners) have prices moving higher. Their buying activities focused on some leading stocks as banking, oil and gas and others as: HPG, SSI, TRA, MSN, VIC, DRC.

Otherwise, local investors concentrated their money on sharply trendy stocks. We realize that many local individual investors were interested in mid-low cap stocks which prices have followed steep upward trends, such as: CTI, TTF, HHS, GTN, BHS, SBT, LSS, oil&gas stocks, steel stocks, etc. They have a common price pattern of long upward trend. This confirms that momentum trading is very popular, especially to individual investors. Market usually sees this when turning into the bull phase.

Besides, margin cash flows still kept their role in current market. Many stocks which are usually the attractive destination of these cash flows continued to go higher, typically HAR, BHS, SHN, AAA etc.

Recommendations:

VN-Index and HNX-Index kept moving up on high volumes. VN-Index is now on the way up to 640 area while the target of HNX-Index is around 87. Short-term trader considers selling stocks around resistances and covering at lower prices while long-term investors may maintain the current portfolio longer.
