Market today: Failure to Overcome 830 Level

(Quang Vo – Ext: 1517)

The VNIndex (828.93, +0.15%) movement was similar to what happened in the previous session as the index failed to surpass the 830 level although it had reached the high level twice. Large caps, especially ROS, mainly drove the index. If the stock's performance is not considered, the VNIndex will close in the negative zone as the majority of shares (142 stocks) closed below their reference prices. This indicates that the capital flow was selective.

Foreign investors also drew attention as they were strongly selling with net value of negative VND142B, which is the largest amount over the last two weeks. However, transactions took place mainly in HPG (VND60B) and KBC (VND48B) while we did not see any unusual transactions in the rest of the market.

Overall, considering that the VNIndex failed to end above the 830 level for eight times, along with highly selective inflows, we remain skeptical on our opinion about the upcoming index rally.

"Failure to Overcome 830 Level"

Business Results Update:

TNG recently announced their Q3 business results. Its sales jumped significantly by 43% YoY to VND849B. Coupled with the stable gross margin and net margin of 17% and 5%, respectively, this leads to a 56% increase in TNG's NPAT. The VND46B earnings figure has surprised us, considering that TNG usually earned VND20B to VND30B each quarter and there was no significant change in TNG's operating activity.

Technical Analysis Recommendation

VN-Index struggled around 830 while HNX-Index kept moving down after hitting 110. Trading volume reduced on HSX. The market may face a short-term correction. Traders should take profit and then cover stocks at lower prices.
