Market today: The Market is in the Green after The Fed's Decision

(Hieu Nguyen – Ext: 1514)

It came as no surprise that the Fed decided to increase interest rates by 0.25% after its meeting last night. With this being the 2nd rate hike within only three months, the Fed has sent a strong message about its confidence in the US economy and its outlook for the market. Most stock markets around the world rose after the decision, and the market also widely believes that there will be at least 2 other rate hikes this year. Our macro analyst will also provide an update on his view on this matter in today's Analyst Pinboard.

The VN-Index also behaved similar to other stock markets. Although it only gained by 0.25% to 714.92 points, due to the influence of ROS and VJC, gainers outweighed losers by a fair amount. Many sectors have performed well today, namely the construction, financial, rubber and fertilizer sectors. The liquidity also surged to this week's high of VND3,400 billion. It seems that at this rate, the market may be able to absorb all of the selling coming from the two ETFs tomorrow.

There are 500 stocks listed on the UPCOM-INDEX. Thanks to efforts to get equitized firms listed within such a short period of time, a lot of new firms have been listed on the UPCOM. This includes numerous noticeable companies such as BHN, ACV, HVN, and QNS. The UPCOM Index market cap has reached VND423,000 billion and will surely keep increasing. The UPCOM's liquidity is now around VND200 billion/session, but is still nowhere near that of the HNX, which is about VND450 billion.

Recommendations:

VN-Index and HNX-Index increased on rising volumes. The number of gainers overwhelmed the number of losers. In general, the two indexes are fluctuating in narrow range. Traders should continue raise the proportion of cash and wait for a few sessions.
