This week stock market: VNM the "bull"

6 PM CALL

Market today: This week stock market: VNM the "bull"

(Lam Nguyen - Ext: 1313)*

VNM was the "stock of the week" after the approval of deleting 7 constrained businesses to pave the way for FOL lifting. The stock went up 5.2% with an average trading volume of 1 million shares/session (33% higher than one-month average).

This week biggest political event was the successful election of Prime Minister and many other key positions. New expectations on new leaders spread out the stock market. Therefore, the upside of VNM had spillover effect on most of remaining shares. Therefore, VNIndex bounced off and closed at 572.34 pts (+2.5% w-o-w) and HNIndex rose 2.6% to 80.24 pts.

Foreign investors net bought excluding put-through activities. They net bought 18 million shares, equivalent to VND245 billion in HSX via matching orders. However, offshore investors net sold VND1,317 billion worth of 25 million shares via put-through. SSI was their favorite stock while VIC was strongly shorted.

Liquidity was the minus of this week trading. Average volume was 149 million shares (-11% compared to average of last week), equivalent to a drop of 9% in value. Lower in liquidity, narrowing trend in market breadth, "lonely" VNM are considered as factors for a temporary recovery. Therefore, caution is still top priority.

Recommendations:

The market kept moving up but the selling forces seemed stronger, too. The two indexes are approaching their resistances. The liquidity increased slightly but was still lack of credibility. The trading volumes need to be higher in next sessions to confirm the reversal. Trader should maintain the stock/cash ratio at a reasonable degree.
