“Unusual Transactions in the ATC Session”

6PM CALL

Market today: Unusual Transactions in the ATC Session

(Hieu Nguyen – Ext: 1514)

Most stocks in the VNIndex (774.03, -0.42%) was relatively quiet, except speculative stocks whose price fluctuated from ceiling (FIT) to floor (FLC, HAR, and HAI). Meanwhile, many stocks used to be considered as having good fundamental (such as DQC, SKG, VNS, and NT2) hit their 52-week bottom. For NT2 (VND26,200, -1%), the downtrend is partially because total output in 7M2017 only reached 2,667 million kWh (-15% YoY) in the backdrop of 40% increase in gas price and unfavorable CGM price in H1 2017. Simultaneously, the major repair conducted from the beginning of September this year would have certain impact on its business activities. Moreover, due to the effect from weaken USD while VND is pegged to USD, VND has depreciated by 5.6% against EUR since 30th June, implying a VND118 billion exchange rate loss from NT2's EUR denominated debt.

However, we still highly appreciate the stable prospect in the long term of NT2's operation. We also expect that FED's interest rate hike and its balance-sheet reduction would help USD recover, helping the EUR/VND pair stabilize. Therefore, the overall impact from exchange rate fluctuation on NT2's business result in H2 2017 would not be large.

The market was not active until the ATC session when price of many stocks in the VN30 basket such as BVH, KDC, VNM, and SSI suddenly fell to the floor price. Abnormal transactions cause the market to suspect the selling force comes from the VNM ETF. Previously, since the beginning of the month, the VanEck Vectors Vietnam ETF Fund has been withdrawn a total of USD7.24 million, and the number of fund certificates also fell by 500,000 units. So if today's unusual transaction was indeed from the ETF's, it is more likely that this time the fund choose to sell a large blocks of shares at once instead of gradually distributed them. But since today's ATC trading happened long after the fund withdrawal, another possible scenario is that the fund has made another sale before releasing the data on the number of fund certificates withdrawn. Given the large amount of net selling today, we are inclined to the first scenario.

As the market is lack of support information, market interest heads to ETF's movement. The market is usually quiet until these funds complete the portfolio reconstitution. However, it is worth noting that liquidity has returned in the first two sessions this week, and the fact that the index has successfully tested the bottom level can potentially support the market sentiment. Therefore, investors who want to trade at this time can choose stocks in which technical analysis has seemed to confirm their reverse trend from the bottom.

Technical Analysis Recommendation

Indexes decreased on rising volumes. Selling forces appeared when indexes exceeded short-term resistances. Traders should increase the stock proportion in the portfolio when indexes retest these resistances successfully.
