"Shares of Brokerage Firms Outperformed the Market"

6PM CALL

Market today: Shares of Brokerage Firms Outperformed the Market

(Thien Bui– Ext: 1321)

Securities stocks outperformed the market. The trading volume of these shares also surged with high participation from foreign investors. For many of these stocks such as VND (ceiling), SHS (ceiling), SSI (+VND700/share), and BVS (+VND600/share), foreign investors accounted for more than 50% of the total volumes. Foreigners net bought VND298 billion on both the HSX and HNX. Brokerage firms were among the top 5 net bought shares including SSI (VND32 billion), VND (VND13 billion), SHS (VND4 billion), BVS (VND3 billion).

We will have more comments on this movement in today Analyst's Pinboard: "Shares of Brokerage Firms: Rumors and Reality"

The VNIndex increased substantially today. There were times when the VNIndex surpassed the 730 level, but the opposite movement of VN30 stocks cooled the market down in the end and hence, the VNIndex closed at 729.87 (+1.92). The HNXIndex remained above 90 with a slight rise of 0.29, and its matching volume rose by 44% to an average of 65 billion shares/session. However, the total matching volume on the HSX dropped significantly to 144 billion shares (-24%), while the matching value did not experience significant changes. Mid- and small-cap stocks seem to be attractive to investors.

Investors somehow felt excited when the VNIndex approached and even surpassed 730 pts. However, the market breadth and liquidity in terms of volume are not very persuasive. The VNIndex is easily biased by large-cap stocks, as we saw VJC and SAB influencing the market today. In brief, today's movement did not point out any clear trends. It is not the index, but rather specific stocks that are more important when the market is having an unclear trend.

Recommendations:

Indexes went up slightly. VN-Index broke its resistance but the liquidity was quite low. HNX-Index fluctuated on narrow range. Traders should maintain a balance portfolio and wait to see if indexes break their resistances or supports.
