“Attempt to hold the 1,260”

6PM CALL

Market today: Attempt to hold the 1,260

(Nguyen Huy Phuong – phuong.nh@vdsc.com.vn)

- Although the market is still weak, the current support signals may provide momentum for a recovery in the near future.
- The market is expected to continue to be supported as it retreats and has another opportunity to test the 1,265 level.

Market was cautious at the start of the new trading session and quickly retreated into the red under pressure from the Real Estate sector, particularly the negative performance of DXG. The loss gradually widened during the session and VN index fell below the 1,255 level. However, the market found support in the afternoon session and made efforts to limit the decline. VN Index fell by 2.4 points (-0.19%) to close at 1,260.36 points. Liquidity increased with 520.7 million shares traded on the HOSE.

VN30 index rose by 0.25 points (+0.02%) to close at 1,323.27 points. Within this group, 9 stocks rose, such as STB (+0.6%), SSB (+0.6%), VIB (+0.5%), MWG (+0.5%), VJC (+0.4%), while 13 stocks fell, such as BID (-1.3%), HPG (-1.1%), PLX (-0.8%), BVH (-0.6%), MBB (-0.6%).

The green zone narrowed with the market's weak performance, but the divergence persisted, with most of the best performers in Midcaps and Pennies. Real estate sector weighed on the market and investor sentiment. By contrast, the chemicals sector continued to show strong movement.

Foreign investors returned to net buying on HOSE to VND44.8 billion. They bought heavily in SSI (+59.9 billion), MWG (+39.2 billion), STB (+33.3 billion), KDH (+26.8 billion), CTR (+25.1 billion), while BID (-70 billion), NLG (-47.3 billion), VRE (-41.8 billion), VCB (-40.5 billion), HPG (-40.5 billion) were the top selling names.

Despite the downward pressure on the market, there is still an attempt to hold the 1,260 zone by the end of the session with a hammer candlestick signal. Liquidity increased from the previous session, showing that the increased supply pressure is present, but overall money flows are still absorbing supply at lower price zones. Although the market remains weak, the current support signals still have the potential to create momentum for a rally in the near future. The market is expected to continue to find support as it pulls back, with another opportunity to challenge the 1,265 level. If this resistance is breached, the market is likely to become more active. Therefore, investors can expect the market to rally. In the meantime, investors can explore short-term opportunities in stocks that are rallying from support zones or have already retreated to strong support zones. However, investors should be mindful of the recovery momentum in order to take short-term profits on stocks that have risen rapidly to resistance levels or to adjust their portfolios accordingly.

Technical Analyst Recommendations

The market was under pressure to decrease but still maintained the 1,260 points zone with the Hammer candlestick signal. Current support signals can still create momentum for the market to recover in the near future. It is expected that the market will continue to be supported when it retreats and has more opportunities to challenge the 1,265 points zone. Therefore, Investors can expect the market's recovery. At the same time, investors can exploit short-term opportunities in some stocks that have improved from the support zone or have retreated to good support zone. However, investors need to consider the recovery to take short-term profits on stocks that have increased rapidly to the resistance zone or restructure the portfolio.
