Market today: Conservativeness Was Dominant in Today's Trading

(Thien Bui - Ext: 1321)

The VNIndex and HNIndex extended their losses. The VNIndex decreased by 6.15 pts and the HNIndex decreased by 0.28 pts. Both of their trading volume (+2.2%) and value (+24.4%) increased compared to last Friday. ROS continued to lead the market while VNM, VIC, GAS, MSN, VCB, BID and BVH contributed mostly to the downward movement of the VNIndex.

Foreigners surprised domestic market players as they participated strongly in today's trading. The participation rate of foreigners was 14.6%, far higher than the average of 9% - 10% since the beginning of this November. In the HSX, they were net sellers and mainly sold VNM, FLC, HPG, and SSI. In the HNX, they slightly net bought VND139 million. The selling pressure might have come from VanEck Vectors Vietnam ETF, as it trades at a 3.1% discount (as of 11/11/2016). The FTSE Vietnam UCITS ETF is trading at 4.1% discount but no shares outstanding are withdrawn.

*It is hard to tell the exact value of today's selling that came from bottom fishers last Wednesday, but we do know that the market faced strong pressure from those investors. If investors believe the market could rally like Brexit event, they should hold and new buyers will enter the market to bid at higher prices. However, this belief is quite fragile as we observed market liquidity decreasing on last Thursday and Friday. Today shows one thing, which is that investors are still very conservative about market strength and they think the rally after the election day is just a short-term rally.

After the election, market players are now looking forward to the Fed's decision in December. The expectations for a rate hike at the policy meeting in December reached 90% today. The dollar index was up 0.95%, near the peak in December 2015. The upside of the USD and the increasing possibility for rate hiking were due to the optimism that Trump's policies, like increasing fiscal spending and cutting tax rates, could spur economic growth and inflation.

Recommendations:

Both VN-Index and HNX-Index went down after some rally sessions. VN-Index is still in a correction while HNX-Index is in a downtrend. Trader should maintain a portfolio which is balanced between cash and stock. Highlighted sectors were Steel and Coal.
